165th starts program for new cadre, drill sergeants

The 165th Infantry Brigade has implemented a program designed to focus and clarify training standards for new cadre members.

In April, the brigade launched a 10-week integration and training program that standardizes the training received by new Soldiers and reinforces policy and procedure within the ranks, said Col. Brian Hernandez, 165th commander.

“We established the 165th (Infantry) Brigade Reception and Integration Training this summer in order to better receive, integrate and prepare all cadre coming into the brigade in the proper conduct of Basic Combat Training,” Hernandez said.

The 10-day course focuses on the fundamentals of Basic Combat Training, with a heavy emphasis on rifle marksmanship, physical readiness training, warrior tasks and battle drills, and professional conduct.

“We try and make sure drill sergeants understand all of the Skill Level 1 things they need to teach the trainees,” said Sgt. 1st Class Joseph Turley, non-commissioned officer in charge of the program. “The Drill Sergeant School can’t go as in depth as we can because there are so many (Soldiers.) It’s focused to make sure there’s a standard across the brigade, instead of having units doing things in different ways.”

Hernandez said the program uses a team of third-year drill sergeants to not only act as course instructors, but also coaches and mentors. He called this team “the best in the brigade.”

“The program also serves as the conduit for NCOs and officers coming from the operational force to bring their experiences and leadership and integrate them into the process of transforming civilians into Soldiers,” Hernandez said.

Turley said much of this course is designed to stress the importance of training fundamentals.

“(New Soldiers) don’t need to know all of the tactics we’re using in Afghanistan right now,” he said. “They don’t need to know what tactics we’re using in Iraq right now. They receive all of those things when they get to their unit.”

The program is primarily — but not exclusively — designed for drill sergeants new to the brigade.

“There are a lot more drill sergeants that come in than permanent party cadre members,” Turley said. “It’s really focused on drill sergeants, making sure they’re all on the same page for Skill Level 1.”

Staff Sgt. Bror McWhinney, one of the brigade’s instructors, said the results have been positive — and immediate. Marksmanship scores have already improved, he said.

“That’s something we can see with actual numbers,” McWhinney said.

The course wasn’t immediately embraced when the concept was originally introduced, though.

“It was pretty difficult at first to get everyone on board,” McWhinney said. “We’re very limited on resources and time with drill sergeants, so trying to pull people away for any sort of training that doesn’t involve trainees is very difficult.”

Ultimately, Hernandez said redistributing the brigade’s resources to support the program has already proven to be the right decision.

“Overall, it has been a tremendous program and increased the training levels and competencies of our cadre.”

Soldiers and Department of the Army civilians must use their individually billed account government travel charge card, or GTCC, to pay for permanent-change-of-station expenses. However, help is available to Soldiers and civilians who may need to prepare to use their GTCC for moving expenses, said Edward Hinson, director of the Fort Jackson Defense Military Pay Office, or DMPO.

“The first thing they have to do when they receive their orders is contact their local agency program coordinator to sign up for the PCS program, and when they get to their next duty station they have to contact the APC there and inform them of their arrival,” Hinson said.

Tarsha Purnell, financial management analyst and agency program coordinator for the Army Training Center, said Soldiers will need to fill out a memorandum of enrollment form when visiting the APC office to sign up for the PCS program.

“This form allows us to have forwarding information to ensure the cardholder’s new unit has transferred the card account into its hierarchy upon the reporting date or within 10 days of reporting,” Purnell said.

Purnell said the cardholder’s enrollment in the PCS program also provides protective measures on the account.

“Registration into the PCS program places the cardholder’s account into ‘PCS status,’ which prevents any monthly late fee penalties (after 30 days) for delays in settlements with travel vouchers as a result of a delinquent account,” Purnell said. “The program also helps track PCS-related expenses that are reimbursable when finalizing travel vouchers. Travelers will need to maintain all receipts to justify and support entitlements.”

Hinson said there are other benefits to using the travel card.

“When Soldiers enroll in the PCS program they do not have to wait around for the dislocation allowance and travel advances,” he said. “They can withdraw up to the limit that they are authorized for the dislocation allowance and the advanced travel from the ATM.”

Hinson said that Soldiers are potentially cutting 10 days off their wait time for dislocation allowance and travel advances by using the government travel charge card.

“The Soldiers can receive these funds immediately, whereas before they would have to probably wait a few days for that money,” he said.

Hinson said that he is aware that some Soldiers prefer the old system.

“We have Soldiers who will come in and flat-out say they do not want to use the card and they want their advance. Well, we cannot do that. If you have a card, you have to use it,” he said. “Soldiers who travel more than twice a year are required to have a card. If they refuse to get one, then that’s something they need to refer to their chain of command. If they refuse to get a travel card they will not receive a (permanent duty) travel advance because they should have had a card and chose not to get one.”

Hinson said it is important for Soldiers to keep in mind that the mandate is for those with an individually billed account, or IBA, and that the guidance does not say Soldiers must obtain an IBA for a PCS move. New allotment rule protects troops

By TERRI MOON CRONK
DOD News

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel has directed a policy change in new paycheck allotments to prevent unscrupulous commercial lenders from taking advantage of troops and their families, Pentagon officials announced Nov. 21.

Effective Jan. 1, the change in DOD’s Financial Management Regulation will prohibit service members from allotting pay to buy, lease or rent personal property, a senior DOD official said.

IMPROVING PROTECTION FOR TROOPS

This policy change will eliminate that aspect of the allotment system most prone to abuse by unscrupulous lenders that prey on service members.

This will significantly improve protections for all Service members and their families, while not significantly reducing the flexibility to use allotments for a number of legitimate purposes, a Pentagon news release reported.

NEW ALLOTMENT CHANGES

DOD officials said that while existing allotments are affected, Service members will no longer be able to make allotments for the following types of purchases:

■ Vehicles, such as automobiles, motorcycles and boats;
■ Appliances or household goods, such as furniture, washers and dryers;
■ Electronics, such as laptops, tablets, cell phones and televisions;
■ Other consumer items that are tangible and moveable.

Allotments still can be used for savings account deposits, investments, to support dependents, pay insurance premiums, mortgages, rents, make Combined Federal Campaign contributions, and U.S. government debt repayments.

Another line of protection for service members and their families is included when starting new allotments through MyPay and manually on DD Form 2558, officials said.

Officials said Service members must certify under the Uniform Code of Military Justice that the allotment is not for “the purchase, lease or rental of personal property of or payment toward personal property.”

REVIEWING THE ALLOTMENT SYSTEM

The secretary directed the change following an interagency review that began in June 2013 in response to a major enforcement action by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

The team comprised DOD representatives from the comptroller, Defense Finance and Accounting Service, personnel and readiness, and general counsel offices in the Joint Staff and secretary’s offices.

Non-DOD participants were from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., CFPB, Federal Reserve Board, Comptroller of the Currency and the National Credit Union Administration.

Defense Officials said a 2012 analysis showed that the top 10 financial institutions that received allotments from Service members processed almost two million allotments totaling $3.767 billion.

Of the top 10 allotment processors, state law enforcement, consumer advocates and the financial regulators have flagged three particular institutions as suspected abusers of the allotment system. Those institutions received 999,588 allotments totaling $1.380 billion in fiscal year 2012.

ALLEMNT USAGE BY RANK

 Officials said the 2012 analysis also found that on average per capita, warrant officers use 5.73 allotments, commissioned officers use 3.55 and enlisted personnel use 3.49 allotments, respectively. The dollar average per allotment is highest for warrant officers ($1,679 per allotment), followed by officers ($1,554 per allotment), and then enlisted personnel ($1,224 per allotment).

The new allotment rule applies to active-duty members and not military retirees or DOD civilians, officials said.

Thanksgiving a family affair for 3-34th

Thanksgiving had a little bit of a different meaning this year for several families. While most families enjoyed a few days off from work and ate home-cooked meals, several hundred families traveled to Fort Jackson to participate in the Basic Combat Training graduation ceremonies for 3rd Battalion, 34th Infantry Regiment.

Graduation activities started with the Family Day ceremony at Hilton Field and continued with the battalion’s Family Awareness Brief. The briefing attempts to build on the many lessons learned from the unit’s online Army Family Team Building program by augmenting them with briefs from Army Community Services, TRICARE, Red Cross and others. The goal is to provide family members with the tools necessary to assist their Soldier through their first duty assignment and to relieve stress from some of the unknowns that spouses, parents or fiancés may have.

The family theme continued on Graduation Day when retired Brig. Gen. James Kennon served as the guest speaker. Kennon was a graduate of Basic Combat Training here in 1969. Kennon returned to Fort Jackson to join other family members to witness his grandson’s graduation from Company B. Sherry McMaster, the grandmother of a Soldier in Company C, provided special support by providing 200 miniature flags to the Soldiers in the company. The flags were folded by the Girl Scouts of Citrus Council Alumnae Association in Orlando, Florida.

The events concluded with the battalion opening its dining facility to more than 1,000 Soldiers and family members. Cadre and family members of the Rock Force Battalion served their guests while the family members were able to experience military dining at its finest.

Lt. Col. Scott Sonsalla, commander of the 3-34th, said it was his favorite graduation to date.

"Giving the families a chance to eat in the DFAC and share that with their kids was awesome," he said. "The support from the parents and grandparents was exceptional."

From left, Maj. Antonio Pittman, executive officer of the 3rd Battalion, 34th Infantry Regiment; 3-34 Command Sgt. Maj. David Boone; and Lt. Col. Scott Sonsalla, 3-34th commander, serve Thanksgiving meals to Soldiers and family members Nov. 27.

CID warns about new carjacking scam

Criminal Investigation Command

QUANTICO, Va. — The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command is warning the greater Army community about a new carjacking scam targeting unsuspecting holiday shoppers.

Criminal Investigation Command, commonly referred to as CID, special agents were recently alerted through law enforcement channels about a new ploy, in which criminals use the lure of free cash as a distraction. The crime provides crooks a window of opportunity to swoop in and rob unsuspecting victims of their belongings, including their vehicles.

“What we’ve heard is criminals will place a $100 bill, usually on an individual’s windshield under the wiper blade, and while the victim is distracted and gets out to retrieve the cash, the criminals use the element of surprise to approach the vehicle and rob the victim of (his or her) belongings and car,” said Special Agent Mark Kerr, a CID agent with Headquarters, Army CID. “It’s the perfect distraction during the holiday season because everyone could use a little extra cash, especially if it’s free.”

According to the Maryland’s Attorney General’s Office the scam, initially reported to Prince George’s County law enforcement, has the potential to spread throughout the country. However, steps can be taken by the public to combat this scam.

Kerr said that should people discover money on their vehicle to quickly move to a safe, public location and to notify law enforcement or security personnel immediately. Lock your doors and do not get out of the vehicle to retrieve it.

The following safety tips are recommended by the CID to help ensure the greater Army community has a safe and secure holiday season:

- Have your keys in hand when approaching your vehicle. Check the back seat and around the car before getting in.
- Park in well-lit areas and as close to the store as possible.
- Avoid becoming an easy target for thieves by not purchasing more than you can safely carry.
- Plan ahead by taking a friend with you or ask a store employee to help you carry your packages to the car. If leaving a store late at night and by yourself, ask security to walk you to your car if you feel threatened.
- Wait until asked before taking out your credit card or checkbook. An enterprising thief would love to “shoulder surf” to get your account information.
- Do not leave packages visible in your car windows. Lock them in the trunk or, if possible, take them directly home.
- Deter pickpockets. Carry your purse close to your body or your wallet inside a coat or front trouser pocket.
- Tell a security guard or store employee if you see an unattended bag or package. The same applies if you are using mass transit.
- If you are shopping with children, make a plan in case you get separated. Select a central meeting place and make sure they know they can ask mall personnel or store security employees if they need help.
- Always be alert and aware of your surroundings and do not blindly walk in public areas focused on your phone.

It’s crucial that Soldiers, civilians and family members protect themselves throughout the holiday shopping season,” Kerr said. “Having a plan in the event of an emergency and being aware of your surroundings is the best way to keep from becoming a victim.”

New branch offers challenges, opportunities

Fort Gordon Public Affairs Office

FORT GORDON, Ga. — Soldiers who want to defend the nation in cyberspace, as part of the Army’s newest and most technologically advanced career field, now have an Army branch to join that will take its place alongside Infantry, Artillery and the other Army combat arms branches.

Army Secretary John McHugh and Chief of Staff Gen. Raymond Odierno approved the creation of the Cyber branch in September, as one of the first official steps in establishing a 17-series career field specifically dedicated to managing the careers and professional development of officers. The remainder of the 17-series career field management program is expected to be implemented by October, with both enlisted and warrant officer career paths.

“Once accepted into the career field, officers, warrant officers and enlisted Soldiers will fill a wide variety of positions with cyber mission force units and traditional Army formations, including: cyber operator, analyst and planner positions. The branch will also include traditional leadership, command and staff positions.

Although a significant number of cyber positions will be located at Fort Gordon and Fort Meade as the majority of cyber elements are assigned there, cyber Soldiers will have assignment opportunities across the force. The Army’s total force approach to cyber includes significant growth in the Army National Guard and Army Reserve’s cyberspace capabilities and capacities.

“We believe the branch will attract high-quality talent to the Army. Many of those people, once they experience the opportunities available in the Cyber branch, will choose to stay,” Conti said.

“I think membership in the Cyber branch presents an exciting, cutting-edge opportunity for the right Soldiers,” Buckner said. “It will be a unique gathering of professionals, using skills that have become associated with the bad guys in our popular culture. But we’ll be wearing the white hats — good Soldiers, doing good work in cyberspace for a great nation. I can’t think of a more interesting and rewarding opportunity to serve than that.”

For information on joining the Cyber branch as an officer, contact the Human Resources Command Cyber branch at (502) 613-5398/6614. Enlisted and warrant officer branch contact information will be released as it is established.

WASHINGTON — This year’s Combined Federal Campaign contributions for the Department of Defense are 85 percent ahead of last year’s pace at this time in the drive, said a CFC executive.

While 85 percent seems high, the goal of $11.3 million is just 30 percent attained, said Pete Rossi, who was at the Pentagon last week with other volunteers raising awareness and ginning up interest with a bake sale.

People tend to put off contributing until near the end of the campaign, which this year runs through Dec. 15, he said.

“I think there will be a strong finish this year,” he said.

The low contributions last year, Rossi said, were almost certainly the result of sequestration and furloughs, something that fortunately didn’t occur this year.

CFC is encouraging people to go online to donate.

There are a number of reasons to donate online, said Giselle Whitfield, an executive from the Army Acquisition Support Center, Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

First, donations can be done at home or any place with Internet access, she said.

Second, the online catalog lists 25,000 charitable organizations, as opposed to just 4,000 in the print catalog.

Third, personal information is more secure online than by paper, she said, explaining that a person’s Social Security number is more protected online than on paper, which someone has to carry around and then enter online anyway.

The DOD is moving away from paper enrollment, and away from paper will be used to persuade and assist people like them to go online.

Every DOD unit has a CFC campaign manager who is designated to assist anyone needing help in contributing. Also, each command runs its own CFC campaign, and many have found really creative and fun ways to get people to contribute, she said.

WASHINGTON — Many federal employees say they are happy with their health insurance and are not planning to shop around for another. That would be a mistake, said Federal Employees Health Benefits, or FEHB, expert Walton Francis, who is also an economist.

Francis estimated that some 30 percent of FEHB enrollees could save around $2,000 a year by choosing a plan with lower premiums and out-of-pocket costs.

Shopping for an affordable plan is increasingly important because, officials said, the average premium rates for FEHB enrollees will increase about 3.8 percent, dental coverage rates will increase 1.7 percent and vision will increase about 1.5 percent.

The last day to shop around, Monday, is fast approaching though.

While going through the fine print on dozens of plans would be daunting for anyone, Francis suggests at least reading the plan summaries, found within the 2015 guide published by the Office of Personnel Management. That guide can be found at http://www.opm.gov/healthcare-insurance/healthcare-plan-information/guides.

Francis hosted an online question and answer session, Dec. 1, in conjunction with the Washington Post Federal Diary.

One session participant’s son has attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, which requires many appointments with therapists and psychiatrists. The participant wondered which plan was best for their family.

Francis said all FEHB plans have to cover mental health the same as physical health. The key is to shop around and find a plan accepted by the mental health provider.

Another participant, who was planning on becoming pregnant, asked which plan is best for her growing family.

Francis said that most plans give free or very low-cost maternity coverage — including delivery.

“Plans are, however, getting more heavily into pre-approval for expensive imaging like MRIs and specialty drugs.”

Federal workers who are not shopping around each year for a plan that may be better than their current one are “making a big mistake,” Francis said.

“First, without fail, consider you and your family’s health status and consider that the match between the plan’s benefits and what you need may no longer be so good.

“Second, download the plan brochure and look at the page on how benefits change for next year. You may see good news or bad news, but you need to know.

“Third, check to make sure that any really important doctors are still in your plan network next year, and while you are at it, find out what other networks they are in... by calling the doctor’s office,” he said.

And finally, Francis said, “consider giving yourself a one or two thousand dollar increase in take-home pay and reduced spending by looking at just one or two other plans with lower premiums and equal or better benefits.”

LUGOFF...Where It’s Always Fast, Fair & Friendly!
Stay healthy during the holiday season

By ALISON CUCCIA
U.S. Army Public Health Command

The holiday season can be a time of great celebration, gratitude and joy. However, the holiday season can also have a negative effect on health. High stress levels, lack of time for sleep and physical activity, and the overabundance of unhealthy food and alcohol often overpower us during this time and can lead to negative health effects down the road. In order to remain ready and resilient, Soldiers, family members and civilians should aim to enjoy the holiday season while preserving their health and well-being.

Between overcommitted schedules, financial burdens and family, friends or religious expectations, the holidays can be an incredibly stressful time. Military families often face added anxiety from worrying about loved ones on deployment this time of year. Even traditions that are meant to bring joy can feel stressful, chaotic and lonely to Soldiers and their families.

Many people do not realize the physical toll stress can take on the body. People with high levels of stress are more likely to use tobacco and eat unhealthy foods. These choices can lead to cancer, obesity and other chronic diseases. Stress does not only change behavior, it also changes levels of certain hormones in the body. These hormone changes can lead to obesity, diabetes and heart disease.

Holidays are particularly stressful for many members and civilians due to the added anxiety and responsibility. Often, holiday celebrations involve large amounts of unhealthy food and alcohol. For example, holiday parties almost would not feel complete without some seasonally favorite high-calorie snacks, desserts and alcohol. Although these events are a way to celebrate, it’s important to make smart choices and always remember moderation.

An easy way to avoid overconsumption at a holiday event is to eat before the party. It is easier to avoid consuming large amounts of unhealthy food when your stomach is already full with a balanced meal.

There are also some quick tips to avoid overconsumption when at a holiday party. First, avoid socializing near the food and drinks. When hovering next to a snack bowl, it is easy to eat mindlessly, which may cause you to eat more calories than needed without even realizing it. It’s also useful to use the smallest plates available when getting food. Studies have shown that people who use smaller plates eat fewer calories and still feel satisfied. Further, avoid liquid calories, including sugar-sweetened beverages and alcohol. These beverages do not keep you full as long as food does, yet they can add many calories to your diet. Remember, you can always bring a healthy dish to a holiday party. You may be surprised at how many people are grateful for a healthy option.

The holiday season is often the busiest season of the year. This can leave little time to focus on well-balanced meals. Holiday parties filled with tasty and nostalgic treats, busy schedules and stress can take a toll on physical well-being. Enjoy your holidays, but do not allow the season to derail your health. As always, remember that moderation is the key to a balanced lifestyle. It can help you remain happy and healthy during this holiday season and beyond.
